GROMYKO IS OPPOSED TO ATOMIC PACT

Soviet Delegation Rejects
U. S. Demand Veto Be
Waived On Proposal
For Control

LONG REPORT IS FILED

BULLETIN
Lake Success, N. Y., Dec. 30.—(P)—Soviet Russia charged bluntly today that atomic energy is still being used exclusively for production of aggressive arms and called for urgent action to outlaw atomic weapons. Simultaneously, Russia flatly rejected the United States proposal that the veto be waived on atomic matters, attacking that suggestion as actually a revision of the United Nations charter. Russia, in effect, restated its plan for controlling atomic energy. This asked the nations to outlaw atomic weapons by treaty and destroy existing stocks of bombs.

Lake Success, N. Y., Dec. 30.—(P)—Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet Russian delegate, rejected today the United States demand that the veto be waived on atomic control and called for a day-by-day discussion of the United States atomic plan.

Speaking to the most critical meeting of the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission, Gromyko said that the United States, by proposing there should be no veto on punishment of nations violating the atomic pact, was in fact revising the United Nations charter.

The United States fought powerfully today for a decision on an atomic control system which would permit on the punishment of nations breaking an atomic pact.

The problem was put squarely before the full United Nations Atomic Energy Commission in the shape of an 88-page report which laid the ground-work of a complete system of international control and inspection advocated by the United States.

Every section of the report was approved by at least 10 delegates of the 12-member commission except the bitterly contested provisions on the veto. The majority was said to be divided on the matter of wording, and not because of a fundamental split on the recession of prompt, unqualified punishment.

The United States delegate, Bernard H. Baruch, went to the meeting determined to demand a vote on his content that the word "veto" must be specifically included in the report.

The long document was completed last Friday by commission delegates sitting as a working committee. Russia did not participate in the final work on the report and the Soviet position was left in doubt as the commission met today. Poland abstained in the hope that hope that the five great powers could achieve unanimity before the show-down came.

In the main the report followed the terms of the plan proposed by Baruch last June 14, when the commission first met, for an international system of control and inspection established by treaty among the nations.

Baruch earlier lined up his forces for a final fight.

Gromyko went to the meeting with the added rank of deputy foreign minister of Russia. The Moscow radio announced the appointment of the 37-year-old Soviet diplomat yesterday. He thus became the fifth of the immediate assistants of foreign minister V. M. Molotov.

"JACK THE SNIPPER"
CUTS ANOTHER LOCK

Washington, Dec. 30.—(P)—Harried police found a sixth young woman today who said a lock of her hair had been shaved off by "Jack the Sniper."

Last week a girl reported that a young man sheared their locks as they sat in street cars or buses.

Today, with her 17-year-old fiancé the hero of a battle which killed six gunmen's attempt to rob $250,000 from the army air base's payroll—everything was wonderfully right again with the San Francisco beauty operator.

Before dawn Sunday Hill exchanged shots with and repelled the men who attempted to break into the field's finance office, where $250,000 was cashed to pay the soldiers Tuesday.

But his big worry last night was, "I bet my girl is mad at me. When I got stuck for sentry duty, the wedding was off, but I haven't talked to her. We've been too busy

G. O. P. Leaders Bump Into Challenge To Act Now By Senator From New Hampshire

Washington, Dec. 30.—(P)—Senate Republican leaders' plans to divide up committee assignments at an afternoon meeting bumped into a challenge from Senator Tobey (R-NH) today of their right to act now.

In advance of the meeting, Tobey told reporters that a rule adopted by the Republican conference (the organization of senate GOP members) on December 15, 1944, forbade making or approving any committee assignments until after congress actually convenes.

He took notice of statements by members of the outgoing Republican committee on committees that they were merely making recommendations to the full group of 51 Republican senators and senators-elect.

Tobey's attitude and a bid by Senator Reed of Kansas for the commerce committee chairmanship—tentatively assigned by the leaders to Senator White of Maine—raised the prospect of a sharp row in the GOP meeting.

There were reports that Senators Vandenberg and Taft planned personal appeals in an effort to put down the insurrection against the committee on committees.

The Michigan and Ohio senators, each stated for dual roles in the new senate leadership, indicated they would fight to the last ditch a move headed by Senator Reed of Kansas to bar Senator White of Maine from becoming both floor leader and chairman of the new commerce committee.

Senator Butler (R-Neb.) predicted to a reporter that a firm stand by either or both of the leaders would "crumble" any effort to upset the working assignments laid out in advance by White's committee on committees.

The senate Republicans, who go to bat in a party conference of all of their 51 members today were not alone, however, in their preoccupation with organization controversies.

House Republicans will meet on Thursday to decide a four-way battle for majority floor leadership between the general direction of Rep. Martin Dies of Texas, who is expected to be chosen speaker without party opposition.

Wrapped up in the leadership fight are some of the ambitions of various potential GOP presidential candidates in 1948.

Rep. Halleck of Indiana, who has the public backing of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, apparently holds an edge over Rep. Clarence Brown of Ohio, generally regarded as backed by the Taft forces, and Reps. Jenkins of Ohio and Dirksen of Illinois.

Southern Democrats, meanwhile, threatened to kick over the traces against the election of Rep. McClellan of Massachusetts, who has a seemingly long lead in the contest for minority floor leader.

Butter Prices
Again Decline
In New York

New York, Dec. 30.—(P)—Prices for top grade butter declined 3 3/4 cents a pound today in the New York wholesale market, approximately wiping out last Friday's advance and leaving the post-Christmas drop of from 9 to 10 cents still in effect.

Heavy shipments of butter from the mid-west in order to take advantage of the disparity between New York and Chicago prices, operated to drive the price down here. Grade AA 92 score butter sold for 78 1/2 cents a pound and 92 score grade A for 74 3/4.

The Keystone state hasn't been represented on this powerful group since the lush GOP days of the Roosevelt era. Then Harry C. Rowley, Philadelphia Republican, was a member. But that was a decade ago. During the new deal regime no Pennsylvania Democrat was on it.

But with the state back in the GOP fold a 28-to-5 margin, it has been told, according to the ear-to-the-keyhole boys, that its old rules committee seat is open and waiting.

The house rules committee packs a wallop. By deciding when an under what conditions a bill shall be considered, the group frequently exercises a virtual life-or-death hold on legislation.

Washington, Dec. 30.—(P)—Pennsylvania may slide up its old chair to the house rules committee table, come the new Republican dominated congress.

Slayer Buries
Victim In a
Shallow Grave

Bridgeport, N. J., Dec. 30.—(P)—An eleven-state alarm was out today for John A. James, 36-year-old Socony Vacuum diesel engineer, who is being sought for questioning in the slaying of his wife, Mrs. Hermine James, 35.

The badly beaten body of Mrs. James, her skull fractured and her head and face discolored, was found yesterday in a shallow grave in the back yard of their eight-room white frame home by the woman's father, Siegfried Vollmer, 62, who lived with the James.

Gloucester County Detective George Small said Vollmer told him that he became suspicious over the absence of his daughter when he returned yesterday from a week's visit to relatives in New York City. The James had moved here from New York last July.

Small said Vollmer told him that James left the house to go to the post office yesterday morning. When James did not return, he investigated and came upon newly turned earth in the back yard. There he discovered his daughter's body. Small quoted the father as saying:

"James who works in the research department for Socony in nearby Paulsboro last was seen in a 1937 black Chevrolet sedan with New York license plates, Probert said.

JACK AND HANNA ARE HAVING A REUNION

Los Angeles, Dec. 30.—(P)—Former Heavyweight Champion Dempsey and his estranged wife Hannah Williams of musical comedy, gathered at Jack's home today for a reunion with their two children, Joan, 12, and Barbara, 10. They separated in 1940 after seven years of marriage.

"It's just a visit and not a reconciliation," said Jack. "It's nice to see Hannah here with the children, though."

Petition Asks
$200,000,000
In Portal Pay

Philadelphia, Dec. 30.—(P)—A $200,000,000 portal-to-portal pay suit, largest action of its kind filed by any union in the nation, has been entered in U. S. District court here by attorneys who indicated the amount may reach $500,000,000.

The petition, filed by a battery of attorneys who claimed they represented 13,000 CIO-United Steelworkers employed at the Bethlehem Steel Corporation in 23 of the firm's plants, states that each worker spent between an hour and an hour and a half each working day since passage of the federal wage and hour law in 1938, going to and from his job. The attorneys maintained that their suit, included time spent in punching clocks and performing other duties not counted as working time.

The battery of attorneys, headed by Lee Pressman, general CIO counsel, said they expected 37,000 other CIO members to join in the claim. This would boost the claim to approximately a half billion dollars.

Attorneys for the steelworkers asserted that the present claim on behalf of the 13,000 workers, stipulated $100,000,000 in actual overtime, and $100,000,000 in "liquidated damages" for the firm's alleged failure to compensate workers in full under federal wage-hour law provisions.

Charges of Economic Enslavement and Religious Repression Made By Committee

PROTEST FROM BLOOM

Washington, Dec. 30.—(P)—Charges of economic enslavement, political terrorism, religious repression, broken promises and ambitions for military power were leveled against Russia today by the special house committee on postwar economic policy.

The committee report—the sharpest official criticism of Russia in capitol hall since the Soviet Union went to war with Germany—demanded that the United States assert "positive leadership" in European economic affairs.

Simultaneously it asserted that if Russia actually is found to be using German war plants to rearm, the western allies should denounce the entire transaction. Big Three agreement and demand that the Soviets "evacuate Germany completely."

First reaction to the committee's document came in the form of a protest against "headline hunters" by Rep. Sol Bloom (D-NY), sitting chairman of the house foreign affairs committee.

Bloom told reporters the committee should have submitted its evidence, "if it has any" to the state and war departments for investigation. He contended the report would do "far more harm than good in current diplomatic negotiations."

The state department declined any immediate comment. The unanimous committee report offered a number of specific recommendations, among them:

—A review of the financial aspects of American foreign policy in order to substitute productive and self-supporting economies in ex-enemy countries for the present method of supporting them with American money while they, in turn, are being drained by Russia and France.

—An inquiry into restrictions on the movement of American businessmen and into the methods "by which freedom of access into foreign countries of American information agencies including books, magazines, papers and movies as well as our reporters can be facilitated."

YOUTH IS KILLED BY WAR SOUVENIR GUN

Philadelphia, Dec. 30.—(P)—A sixteen-year-old youth was killed instantly last night by a bullet from a war souvenir gun which discharged as a 13-year-old girl companion was returning to a second floor room.

Patrolman James Quickly, first to arrive on the scene, said John McGinley was participating in a game with five playmates at the time of his death. The policeman said Frances Hart, 13, a girl city policeman, told him she had gotten the gun from upstairs to frighten away the older boys who tried to intrude on her gathering.

As she was returning it, Quickly quoted the girl as saying, the rifle discharged and the bullet struck McGinley as he leaned over a puzzle in the Hart living room.

BULLETINS

Pittsburgh, Dec. 30.—(P)—Police announced four arrests in connection with a series of 12 "dash" holdups climaxed by the shooting of two victims and the slugging of another, a cripple, here early today.

Berlin, Dec. 30.—(P)—Reliable diplomatic sources predicted today that proposals for revision of Germany's western frontier, except for cession of the Saar to France, would be strongly opposed by the United States at the forthcoming German peace treaty negotiations.

Washington, Dec. 30.—(P)—An influential Republican senator said today Senator Theodore G. Bilbo (D-Miss) probably will be able to retain his seat if he musters the support of only 32 senators, or one-third of the senate.

New York, Dec. 30.—(P)—The possibility of a third party on the American political scene was raised today in the wake of speeches by Henry Wallace and others at a meeting to organize a new political action group, the Progressive Citizens of America.

Tabulation Of
Nov. Election
Is Completed

By the Associated Press
Washington, Dec. 30.—(P)—Official 1946 election figures tabulated by The Associated Press reveal today that the Republicans made their strongest showing in the populous east and midwest.

In these two regions composed of 12 states each, the GOP captured 207 of the party's 246 seats in the new house of representatives.

The Republicans also outpolled the Democrats in the combined vote for house candidates in 21 of the 24 states. This would be more than enough to win the presidency in 1948 if those pluralities were maintained.

The 21 states have a combined electoral vote of 394. A candidate must poll 266 to win the presidency.

The official returns disclosed that 35,874,568 persons voted in the first pre-time off-year election since 1928, with the Republicans outvoting the Democrats in 30 states with an electoral vote of 362.

The total vote for house candidates was 34,630,426. The 35,874,568 represented the highest vote cast in each state whether for senator, representative, governor or other state officer. This was an increase of 5,849,641 over the total cast in the last off-year election in 1942, a war year, but 1,429,812 below the war year record established in 1928. It was 1.2 percent over the Associated Press pre-election estimate.

Harrisburg, Dec. 30.—(P)—Whiskey rationing in Pennsylvania was expected to continue for some time and hard-to-get brands may be on the ration list for at least another year.

A Liquor Control Board spokesman said yesterday that despite reports of an early end to rationing the matter was largely dependent upon "the law of supply and demand."

He indicated that some of the so-called popular brands of whiskey, now being rationed, may be placed on the free list in the near future. However, Scotch, bottled-in-bond, Bourbon, Canadian, and Irish whiskeys, still listed as exceptionally scarce, are placed on the sale only one day a month at the state stores.

Sheriff's Office and State Police Apprehend Suspect Long-Sought for Numerous Thefts

MUCH LOOT RECOVERED

BULLETIN
Gaesser was arraigned this morning on information signed by Deputy Sheriff Sanford Secor charging him with burglarizing Johnson Brothers store at Youngsville. The fellow entered a plea of guilty before Magistrate T. M. Greenlee and as the offense is not bailable, Gaesser was remanded to jail in custody of the sheriff. Mrs. Gaesser will be arraigned today on a charge of receiving stolen goods. She will also be held as a material witness in the various cases.

A 46-year old Erie ex-convict, George Gaesser, and his wife are being held in the county jail here following their arrest last Friday at the home of Gilbert Howard, of Scandia, where they were visiting. Mrs. Howard is a step daughter of Gaesser and he had taken a quantity of rugs, linens, etc., to their home. These were recovered and brought to Warren.

Gaesser has been sought by police of Chautauqua county, N. D., and officers of the Warren Sheriff and local barracks of the state police for several weeks. It was known that he drove a Studebaker car and it was sighted at Lakewood about two weeks ago but got away. A check carried on by Sheriff L. E. Linder, Bruce Secor of the State Police, and Under Sheriff Richard Monahan and Deputy Sheriff Merle Campbell, of the Chautauqua county sheriff's office finally located the car at the Howard home. The officers descended on the home and the arrests followed.

Brought to Warren, Deputy Sanford Secor joined in the case and Gaesser was questioned. He freely admitted the robberies and later was taken on a tour of several places where he showed the officers how he attained his loot. Many places he entered rooms where couples slept undisturbed while he robbed them. In one place he secured $100 from a pair of trousers in a sleeping man's room and in another place a musical instrument. He claimed as he carried it from the room.

Open Inquiry
Into Airline
Crash In Eire

Shannon Airport, Eire, Dec. 30.—(P)—U. S. government investigators and TWA officials gathered here today to open an inquiry into the disastrous crash of the trans-world Airline Constellation Star of Cairo in which 12 persons were killed and 11 injured Saturday.

At Ennis county Clare, an inquest into the deaths was adjourned today until Jan. 28 when injured members of the crew are expected to be able to testify.

TWA officials reported last night that two of the survivors, Capt. Herbert Tansley, the pilot, and Dudley Hill, a crew member, had taken a turn for the worse. Tansley's condition was described as "very critical."

Officials said the other nine survivors spent a comfortable night.

Pretty Blonde Vina Ferguson, 25-year-old hostess, lauded by rescuers as the "heroine" of the disaster, described the crash as "just one horrible bump and a little jiggling around."

Two other survivors, Purser Joe Logan of 3 Virginia avenue, Atlantic City, N. J., and David Tannerbaum of New York City, climbed out of the broken end of the fuselage with Miss Ferguson and the three began looking for other victims by the light of blazing high octane gasoline, which illuminated the smashed, twisted wreckage.

Influx of Cold Weather To Continue, Forecaster Says

By the Associated Press
The nation could look forward today to a continued influx of Siberian air with the U. S. weather bureau's promise that it would be the better part of a week before sub zero temperatures moderate appreciably.

"There's a lot of weather around," the forecasters said. "It's settling down pretty well all over the country and behind it is a lot more the same air—with temperatures in parts of Canada as low as 35 and 40 below zero."

They explained the storm area originated in Siberia, "and moved down the north Alaska route, the Yukon valley and due south through the Dakotas to Texas."

Youngsville Firemen Elect New Officers

Youngsville, Dec. 30—Merle See was elected chief of the local fire department at the annual meeting succeeding Lyle Johnson, who had held that post for the past thirteen years and who declined to be a candidate for re-election because of illness. Mr. Johnson has guided the destinies of the department in a most efficient manner and his decision to retire was learned with regret by other members as well as citizens generally. In the reorganization, however, he was chosen president of the board in charge. Oscar Johnson was elected vice president, Gurney R. Ball secretary, Raymond Barton, assistant secretary, and C. W. Spencer treasurer. C. L. Rapp was elected trustee for three years.

Leland Sitter was elected first assistant chief, and other department officials are as follows: Section and assistant chief, Raymond Barton; captains, Robert Spencer and Clarence Walter; lieutenants, Rufus Abraham and Donald Abraham; engineers, Harold Ethridge, Archie Littlefield and Robert Hutley.

The fire company voted to hold a banquet in honor of Mr. Johnson at a later date as a recognition of his faithful and efficient service. They also decided to meet each Wednesday beginning at seven o'clock, January 8, to paint the inside of the fire hall and the social room on the second floor. It was voted to appoint six members each month to meet once a week to inspect the fire trucks and all equipment and see that all are in good working order.

High Voltage Insulation Let Go With Bang

Warren was plunged into total darkness last evening at 7:50 due to a mechanical failure at the substation at Eddy street. One of the pieces of switching equipment on a high voltage line carrying 33,000 volts failed and burst with a blinding flash that was seen over a large area of the city and with a heavy explosion. However, no one was near the section wherein the failure took place and no one was injured.

Immediate steps were taken to switch power to auxiliary equipment and this occupied about 10 minutes when the lights came on again and all service was resumed. Repair to the damaged equipment is being made today. The interruption in service was the cause of many persons calling the police station, fire department and other places and the fact that the firemen had answered a still alarm on the East Side but a short time before led to rumors that someone had been electrocuted. Fortunately there was no truth to the rumor and the interruption in service was but brief.

The annual number of deaths in the United States caused by fire has been relatively stable for the last 30 years.

Mobile Telephones For State Police

Governor Edward Martin makes the first official call over the new Pennsylvania State Police mobile telephone system from a police car at the State Capitol, Harrisburg. Standing at the right is Philip C. Staples, president of the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania, which is installing the new system and will maintain it. The new work, when completed, will include 73 transmitter-receivers, located at various points throughout the state, and 250 mile telephone units installed in police cars.

New Years Eve Parties Will Be Enjoyable

Plans are being made by all of the clubs in the city for special events on New Year's Eve and all are planning for large crowds and plenty of fun. In addition many private parties are being arranged and in many homes the New Year will be welcomed.

At the Outing Club a New Year's Eve party will be arranged and there will be some new and novel entertainment. There will be the usual noise makers, funny hats and serpentine and a "clothes line party" will add to the fun. Extra good music will be arranged for the event.

The Moose is also planning a New Year's party and only paid up members and their ladies will be admitted. Two floors will be arranged for dancing and fun and a cover charge will be levied.

The Roseland Ball Room at the Recreation Center will have a large crowd and a large number of reservations have been made for the event. Good music will provide for the dancing and there will be all of the New Year noise makers, hats, etc., available for the crowd. Bob Williams and Sammy Brindis are arranging to care for the biggest crowd of the season.

From the number of reservations received it looks as if the Knights of Columbus are going to have a large and enjoyable party on New Year's Eve. Plans are completed for an evening of fun and frolic for the members and their ladies tomorrow night. Good music has been secured and a floor show will be one of the many attractions. It is planned at the conclusion of the party to serve breakfast in the club.

At Ben White's Barn Ben and his wife will welcome a big crowd and there will be all sorts of fun with square dancing and Herb Stover doing the calling. Plans are made to take care of a big crowd. The Vets also plan some extra good entertainment and fun for the crowd that will gather there. All in all it looks like a big evening.

Sad News Is Received In Local Home

The J. H. Driscoll home at 313 Water street was twice saddened over the holiday weekend, when word was received that Mr. Driscoll's brother, James T. Driscoll, died early Saturday morning in Olean, N. Y., and that a grandniece, Miss Mary Louise Johnson, had been the victim of an automobile accident in Niagara Falls, N. Y.

James T. Driscoll leaves his wife, one daughter and two sons; also his brother in Warren and three sisters. Services in his memory will be held at ten o'clock Tuesday morning in Olean. Miss Johnson, 16 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Johnson, Niagara Falls, was one of two young people killed Friday night when the car in which they were riding collided with a train in that city. Her mother, Mrs. Johnson, is a niece of J. H. Driscoll.

Despite Wall Street's traditional superstition about numbers, the late J. P. Morgan maintained a home at No. 133 Princes Street, London.

PORTAL-TO-PORTAL PLUS

What may turn out to be the billion-dollar question for American industry is this: Just how much of a worker's non-productive time is spent "under company control and in company interest"?

If organized American business has its way, that question will be answered in a series of amendments by Congress to the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938. In the meantime, if we follow the line of common-sense reasoning, we are forced to the conclusion that the unions, in their present lawsuits, are not asking for enough compensation.

The unions are seeking pay only for time spent on company property. But is it not in the company interest for a man to get to work on time? And, if the worker did not have to show up at a specified time, might he not sleep later in the morning? So why not pay him from the time he gets out of bed?

The unions are now asking that the workers be paid twice as much for their non-working time spent on company property as they get when they are engaged in productive occupation. Following that line of reasoning, it would seem only just that they receive triple or quadruple time for the period when they are not working off the company's property.

All this might bankrupt most American industry, of course, or send prices to impossible levels. But you can't say that it wouldn't be carrying the current line of reasoning to its ultimate conclusion in a triumph of logic.

In the reorganization of the Youngsville fire department it is noted with regret by his many friends in that village and throughout the county that Lyle Johnson, who has served most efficiently as chief for the past thirteen years, declined re-election to that post because of ill health. During the years that Mr. Johnson headed the department it has become one of the best equipped and most efficient fire fighting organizations in the area. Under the able leadership of Merle See it is a foregone conclusion that this fine reputation will be maintained. Mr. Johnson will continue to make available to the department the benefits of his long experience in his new capacity as president of the board of directors.

BUCKWHEAT FOR HEALTH

Buckwheat cake enthusiasts will read with interest a current item which reports that eastern chemists are making a hero out of the lowly buckwheat plant. They are extracting a drug called rutin from the leaves and blossoms of the green plant.

Scientists say rutin appears to be a promising treatment for high blood pressure.

Should present expectations be borne out, it will require an additional 50,000 acres of buckwheat a year to meet the nation's requirements for rutin.

Washington's major indoor sport at present is speculating about the next Republican and Democratic presidential candidates. While President Truman is the logical man to carry the Democratic banner at the next election, he might refuse to run. Who the Republican nominee will be is anybody's guess. Half a dozen men are well out in front for the honor including New York's Dewey, Minnesota's Stassen and California's Warren. But the candidate among all of them who catches the popular and the politicians' imagination is Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. The exciting thing about the general is that he never has played partisan politics and so would be eligible for either party's ticket. The small matter of his own preference has very little to do with it. He has said, "I have no political ambitions at all." If Ike should be drafted, and be elected, he'd find running the Army and winning a war was child's play compared with what he'd get into in Washington. And on general principles, a military man is not a good bet for the highest civilian office. The methods and requirements are too dissimilar.

This is an appropriate time to warn the kiddies about the danger of exploring shore ice along the river and creek. Number of near tragedies have already been reported in nearby towns where children have broken through and received unscheduled icy baths.

The return of icy streets and highways call for exceptional care. Though cinderers crews are doing a good job, both in the county and borough, the areas are treacherous. This is a time to drive carefully and not be in a hurry.

Gradually the Netherlands, a community of some 9,000,000 Europeans, is putting into written form the admission that she no longer possesses the power to hold 70,000,000 Indonesians in colonial subjection. Into a series of agreements she is writing her hopes that despite the end of political domination the economic ties that before the war bound the Indies to the mother country can be salvaged. For the empire that is slipping away was one of the richest ever held by a European power; if it is lost completely it would be a disaster to Dutch economy whose effects might be felt throughout western Europe.

The Netherlands East Indies formed one of the most glittering prizes for which the aggressors of World War two reached out. But for their wealth of oil, rubber, tin and other basic commodities the whole course of the Pacific war might have been different. Japan's warlords were of two minds, torn between a desire to grab the Indies and build an economically self-sufficient and impenetrable empire and the urge to settle accounts with Soviet Russia while Hitler was driving on Moscow. Had the latter motive prevailed it might have been Vladivostok instead of Pearl Harbor, the United States might never have entered the war, the whole course of the conflict might have followed channels that challenge the imagination.

But the Japanese struck southward and so the fate of Holland's eastern empire already put in the balance by Hitler's victories of 1940, was sealed. The colonial ruler of the 9,000,000 over the 70,000,000 was ended.

It is difficult to see any other outcome of the complicated negotiations now in progress.

The basic draft agreement still has to be accepted by the Indonesians and after that there are months of negotiations before all details of the complex new setup are accepted. But the main outlines have been drawn in these bold, board strokes:

By Jan. 1, 1949, there is to be established with Holland's blessing the "sovereign democratic state" of the United States of Indonesia, to be linked in "perpetual union" with the Netherlands as equal partners under the king and queen of the Netherlands.

Equal partners within the United States are to be (1) the Indonesian republic embracing Java, Sumatra and Madura under those outstanding figures of the Indonesian revolt, President Soekarno and Premier, Sjahrir; (2) the "great east," whose new government came into being Christmas day to administer all the Dutch islands each of Java and Borneo except Dutch New Guinea, and (3) Borneo. The place of Dutch New Guinea remains to be determined.

It remains to be seen whether such loose political ties with a great turbulent community on the other side of the globe, fired by visions of freedom, can produce the results for which Hollanders hope.

Washington Daybook

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON—Frank J. Wilson, 59, retiring in January after 10 years as chief of the U. S. Secret Service, sat at his desk in the Treasury building puffing a big cigar.

"I think," he said, "I'll buy a sailboat and cruise around Lake Erie, like I've always wanted to." For 26 years Wilson has been a law enforcement officer in the Treasury Department. The son of a Buffalo policeman, he began his colorful career as a special agent of the Intelligence Unit of the Internal Revenue Bureau in 1920.

He figured in the income tax investigation which resulted in the conviction of Al Capone and other major racketeers, but he says his participation in the Lindbergh kidnapping case was the most dramatic.

He persuaded Lindbergh and his lawyer, Col. Henry Breckinridge, to permit him to take the serial numbers of the $50,000 ransom bills.

This strategy finally resulted in the conviction of the principal Hauptmann when, after three years, he passed one of the bills.

Wilson says his most satisfying achievement has been his service's ability to suppress and eliminate many of the country's leading counterfeiting rings.

Today counterfeiting is at its lowest record in history. In nine years, he boasts, the Secret Service has reduced counterfeiting more than 80 percent.

work and by explaining differences between bad and good money.

Here's how the Secret Service tells you to detect counterfeit bills:

1. Know your money. Study the bills you receive so as to become familiar with the workmanship on them, especially in the portraits.

2. Compare a suspected bill with a genuine of the same type.

LOOMING now is the investigation of stolen War Savings Bonds. Every year, Wilson says, the Secret Service arrests scores of offenders who have stolen, forged and fraudulently cashed Savings Bonds.

In the old days, Wilson says, he used to try to beat the record of the year before for convictions. But now he wants to send fewer people to jail, make more people fraud-conscious.

Wilson says his has been no eight-hour day job. You never would have found him out on the golf links in fine mid-week afternoons.

"I've always worked from 12 to 16 hours and sometimes as much as 24 hours," he says, pointing out that the motto of the Secret Service is "Be alert 60 seconds every minute."

Wilson arises every morning at 7:15 and has a picnic at his breakfast table, eating along with the birds in his garden. Before he sits down at his breakfast table, which is surrounded by windows, he fills up two feeders in the garden with sunflower seeds, peanuts and small chick feed.

"You should see the antics of those bluejays, cardinals, woodpeckers, and snowbirds," he says.

Smart girl! She knows that it pays to keep calls brief on party-line telephones. When you're courteous and considerate to your party-line neighbors... they'll return the courtesy!

Here's a 4-point guide to good service on party-lines: How about checking it with your telephone habits?

1. Keep calls brief.
2. Space calls well apart, so that others may use the line in between.
3. If line is in use, hang up gently and try again in a few minutes.
4. Give right of way to emergency calls.

A STATEMENT of Fact and Policy

So that all the people in all walks of life will fully understand and become acquainted with the aims and ideals of this organization, Warren State Hospital Local No. 469 presents a resume of its place and purpose, its Legislative policy and its membership program. The A. F. C. M. E. dedicates itself to the proposition that its members, both active and potential—Millions strong and growing in number rapidly—shall first share responsibility with elected officials and citizens in whatever Government they may be serving; that they shall feel that Government of the people, by the people and for the people means their Government shall be made to measure up to the ideals without deviation. It has taken formation on the basis that an organized voice in the affairs of employee and employer is beneficial to those whom it serves as well as those who serve. It stands dedicated to the pledge that all rights incorporated in the running of a public institution shall be so protected that every person concerned, in whatever capacity, shall benefit—the Government which operates the institution, the people who become inmates of the institution and the people who daily serve the institution in the capacity of employment. It is for this purpose that this advertisement has been prepared—a statement of fact and policy and an appeal for membership from those eligible to affiliate with the local.

Its Place and Its Purpose . . .

To promote the principle of merit and fitness in public employment in the interest of justice and efficiency.

To uphold and extend Civil Service in Government for the benefit of Public Employees and Government as well as for the Public.

To gain by Education Means a fair and just public attitude toward Public Employees.

To advance the general welfare of State, County, and Municipal Employees.

To provide the employee with the right to train himself for advancement and thus serve his or her position better by aspiring to a higher position.

To insure, that at the end of an honorable career an employee must not rely on Public Assistance.

To inspire confidence from the public, based on protection and perpetuation of the creed which has long been a tradition among the employees of an institution.

To set up a non-striking organization for the purpose of gaining fair treatment, honest consideration and earned rights for members affiliated with this local.

Its Legislative Policy . . .

The General Public and those in a position to become members of this Local are urged to review the following Legislative Program adopted by the Pennsylvania Council of Institutional Employees:

1. Civil service—providing for blanketing in of incumbent workers.
2. Eight-hour day; 40 hour-work week.
3. Time-and-a-half pay for overtime work.
4. Automatic increases annually within grade.
5. Increased retirement allotments—by 25%.
6. Make it optional for employees to live on or off the grounds.
7. Standardize salaries and jobs on state wide basis.
8. Grant retirement coverage retroactively to institutional employees taken over by the state.
9. Permit accumulation of vacation and sick leave up to 60 days each.

We honestly feel that the foregoing program is reasonable and will, if adopted, establish personnel policies which will provide the people of Pennsylvania with mental institutional services second to none.

If you are interested in the care and welfare of the mentally ill contact your local representatives and solicit their support of these measures.

Its Membership Program . . .

The A. F. C. M. E. is a Democratic Institution. Our Locals are free and independent. Its policy is not to injure the rights of non-members who are fellow employees but if possible to gain their confidence and eventually their membership. It has taken a definite stand against any implications against non-members as the primary purpose is to establish harmony and serve efficiently and effectively at all times.

However, by its performance and its organized policy, it hopes to win the confidence of fellow-workers and thereby grow into a 100% representative agency of the institutional employees which it seeks to serve.

In seeking membership of all institutional workers in the sphere of The Warren Hospital Local, the primary aim is to benefit and not handicap them. In order to achieve this goal it is necessary for the workers to affiliate and become members, because in numbers there is strength. Non-members are not obligated to join. In fact the purpose of this Local is not a closed shop. But, above all every institutional employee is asked to attend the Local's next meeting, ask about the plan and purpose, and find out what program is being developed. All questions will gladly be answered and each worker is assured of courtesy and understanding in receiving the answers.

STATE POLICE SAY: Where did the Christmas Holiday end? Did you enjoy Christmas at home with your family or did Santa bring you crutches and bandage in a hospital? The answer depended entirely on you. If you felt that an accident couldn't happen to you and drove your car as though you were the only person on the highway, Santa Claus may have found your stocking hanging from the foot of a hospital bed.

DANCE ON THE DESERT

By Florence Theel

Chapter 1

NO bus ever looked so good to Corporal Bert McLane as this one, bowling eastward on Los Angeles' Wilshire Boulevard, towards the big gates of Sawtelle Military Hospital.

This bus meant home, after three years with the Air Corps, and a boring convalescence, lasting long beyond the end of the war. And home meant Bert's grand scout of a little mother, and her boarding house that he had seen only in pictures, and Snap, his honey-colored little spaniel, his books, and getting his lips upon his saxophone again. It meant a big bed you could roll over in, and heavenly home-made pie and waffles. It meant so many things that made a funny lump now in his throat, as he picked up his cane and suitcase and walked with his buddy, "Carolins" Jaynes, who was still a patient, to the curb. He was tall and dark with gray eyes, steady and far-seeing, and although he felt—and looked—older than his twenty-four years, the corporal had not lost his sense of humor, nor his love of life and fun. He gripped his friend's hand in a way that said this friendship counted.

"Don't forget, you're coming to our place for fried chicken, soon as you're discharged."

"Yes, someone try and stop me!" Carolina drawled.

Bert smiled. "And get your alto sax out of hock before you come, boy, so we can have some music." He shoved his suitcase on the bus.

"Gee! I nearly forgot!" Carolina jerked a folded songbook from his tunic, thrust it into Bert's hand. "All the latest—and all hot!"

The bus door was closing. "Take it easy, fella!" They said it together and, grinning, touched their foreheads in salute, as the bus door shut.

"Fare to Alvarado and a transfer, buddy."

The driver looked at the double row of service ribbons on Bert's chest. "Been around a little, haven't you?"

Bert smiled. "Yeah. And there's no place like home!" He stowed his suitcase out of the way and took a seat in the front, greeting the towering palms and eucalyptus and the lacy pepper trees, as the bus sped towards the city. Tall poinsettia vines flamed against low white houses with red-tiled roofs. Hedges of scarlet berries flung gay color against pale roses, blooming still in January. Home! The beauty he had dreamed of even fiercer than he had remembered. After a while, he looked at Carolina's parting gift: The Latest Song Hits of 1946. And his gray eyes looked beyond the lovely California scenery into a hopeful future. He couldn't go back to his old work; not yet, anyway. Too much walking, standing. But, maybe, now he could do what he'd always wanted to do—play his saxophone in a dance band!

THE Alvarado bus was meeting him, at Westlake Park, and filling quickly with returning shoppers and office workers, as he crossed the street. A pretty girl with brown eyes and a long golden bob was the last one to get on. But, seeing the corporal, she stepped back with a warm smile, almost of recognition, that said, "You take it, soldier."

Bert did not smile back. "After you!" he told her crisply. Doggone it, he was still a man, even if he had been wounded.

The girl flushed, as she looked at him uncertainly.

"Make up your mind, lady!" the driver bawled. "We ain't got all evening." And the girl got on.

The crowd had shifted now, making room for Bert and his suitcase.

"How far to Maryland Street?" he asked the driver as they started.

"Can't say. My first trip, this line. Better watch the signs." The pretty girl said helpfully, "I'm getting off at Maryland. It's only a few steps."

Bert thanked her and took a good, approving look at her trim figure in the dark-blue tailored suit, the ruffled shell-pink blouse, the becoming trifle of a hat, warming now to her friendliness, her bright, returning smile.

"You are Bertram McLane, aren't you?"

"Why—yes." He was trying hard to place her. "I know I should remember where we met—"

She shook her head. "We haven't. Your mother showed me your picture and I recognized you right away—well, almost."

"Then you're one of mother's boarders?" he said, delighted.

"Wonderful!" She smiled at that, but shook

Chapter 2

SNAP, Bert's pretty little spaniel, came rushing to meet him, a joyous, golden streak, barking an excited welcome. Bert set down his suitcase, and the spaniel upon him, licking his face and hands, and going back to his face again.

"Snap! You good old girl!" Bert cuddled the silky head against him. "Glad to see me, aren't you?" But Bert didn't see that Eileen's eyes were misty, as she softly closed the door on their glad reunion.

Proudly the spaniel led the way, and Bert's throat tightened as he read the big sign on the lawn: Mrs. McLane—Rooms—Home Cooking, and the smaller sign above it: No Vacancy. The front door, with its three-starred service banner, opened, and a dainty, anxious little woman in a flowered silk dress, joyously reached up her arms, as Bert bent to envelop her in a big bear hug.

"Mom!" was all that he could say; for the lump was in his throat again.

"Bert—darling—welcome home!"

He held his mother away, admiring her pretty graying hair, her gay red earrings, trying to control his voice. "Gee, Mom, you look swell!"

"You look good to me, too, Son!" She was dabbing at her eyes, laughing through her tears. "Aren't you at me, crying—when I am so happy!" Clapping his arm, she led him down a center hall, past the dining room, where a plump woman was setting the long tables. "We'll have dinner by ourselves, in my sitting room. You can meet the boarders. I mean, the guests—"

Bert had been staring quickly appraising glances about the cheerful house, and as they entered a comfortable room, overlooking the garden, he exclaimed, delighted, "Gee, Ma, this is great! No wonder you preferred this to living in our little house alone."

"I had to do it for somebody, didn't I? With all of you gone?" She smiled, as Bert stared, questioning, at the table attractively laid for four. With a tremulous smile, she opened the high, old-fashioned sliding doors into the adjoining living room.

Bert's mouth fell open, for there, in his marine's uniform, was his younger brother, Paul, grinning at him roguishly, and Eddy, the eldest, in army khaki, sitting at the piano.

"Paul! He wrung his brother's hand. 'This is wonderful! How are you, Paul?'"

"How do I look? Welcome to the igloo!" Still flippant, carefree, as he'd always been. But there was gladness in his handclasp.

Bert went over to his brother Eddy, and his voice assumed another quality, as he said simply, "Eddy!"

"Bert!" There was no need for words between these two who were so close. They were both a little shaky for a moment, then Bert quickly snapped out of it. "This is really something—you two home on furlough!"

"Furlough, nothing! We're out, too!" Paul was relishing Bert's delighted surprise.

"I never could get ahead of you guys, anyway. When did you get home? Why didn't somebody tell me?"

Mrs. McLane said Paul had arrived from his base that morning; Eddy had come home three days before. "I wanted you to be surprised, like I was."

"And you both came through without a scratch?"

"Of course!" Paul pounded his chest. "One of them, the leather neck!"

"And you, Eddy?" Bert grew anxious, as Eddy kept silent.

her head again. "No. I'm Eileen Farwell. I live down the street. Your mother and I are Marylanders."

"You're what?"

She was laughing at his puzzled frown. "It's a club. It started with the people on our street, but now it's pretty big."

"And everybody plays bridge and dances, and things like that?"

"Why not come to our entertainment Monday night and see?" Smiling mysteriously, she pulled the signal cord. "Here's Maryland now."

They got out at a short, up-hill street, blocked at the end by an old-fashioned, turreted hotel set upon a knoll.

"That's where we meet," she said. "The Royal Palms."

He could have been a spot in Italy, Bert thought, looking around, with the lemon and olive trees in the front yards. "This part of town's all new to me," he said.

"It's an old section. Used to be quite ritzy." Eileen had slowed her step to Bert's and soon stopped at a large yellow house that had been converted into small apartments. "Here's where I live. That white house with the big porch is yours. She stood looking up at him, then held out her hand. "I'm so glad you're home, Bert!"

Her fingers, clinging firmly a moment, made his heart beat faster. He felt a new strength surging into him. The South Pacific, those distant, lonely, endless months in hospital suddenly seemed far behind.

"Not as glad as I am!" And he was telling her, though he didn't say the words, that she was a new part of his gladness.

"Y" KIDDIES ENJOY TOUR OF BELL OFFICE

Thirty-one boys took advantage of an opportunity, Friday afternoon to see something that Mr. and Mrs. Public seldom have a chance to witness. On a tour of the Bell Telephone Co., directed by Mr. Conrad and ladies of the staff, the boys' interest was held by the sights and facts that were revealed to them concerning the operation of this massive traffic board in the future when one of these boys makes a phone call and is not immediately greeted with "number please", his mind will flash back to the busy operators, the maze of seemingly tangled lines, and the thousands of tiny holes of which one is his own telephone, and will wait patiently for the operators' voice.

Many good, well-put questions that were asked by the boys were gladly answered by Mr. Conrad and his congenial guides.

Most of the boys who participated in the tour also enjoyed the half-hour swim which followed in the "Y" pool. Boys who attended the tour are: Tommy Barlow, Ralph Pedersen, Donald Hoffman, Bruce Duell, Ronald Arzner, Keith Osterberg, Jon Elyberg, Don Fredricks, Randy Johnson, Frederick Schwab, Ronald Trawick, George Wassman, Charles Eaton, Carl and Jimmy Hornstrom, Jack O'Neill, Roger Anderson, Stuart Kornreich, Dick Eggleston, Gerald Hooker, Don Hendrickson, Dick Hooker, Jim Loding, Jack Downs, Jack Timmis, Charles Fischer, Gail Schaefer, Tom Olson, Frank Moore and David Glassman.

The event was conducted as part of the special holiday program for the boys department of the YMCA. Tonight at 7:15 the boys are invited to attend a full-length feature technicolor movie, "Buffalo Bill", which will be shown in the "Y" auditorium.

Appreciation Success Of Seal Sale

Appreciation to the many persons and organizations for their generous support of the 1946 Christmas Seal was expressed today by H. M. Mohr, chairman, on behalf of the Warren County Tuberculosis Society.

The response of the people in the county to the Seal Sale shows their deep interest in the continuation of the tuberculosis control program remarked Mr. Mohr who said further:

"We are deeply grateful to the people for their response and we assure them the Tuberculosis Society will keep faith with them by making the best possible use of the funds to fight tuberculosis, one of the greatest health menaces of the day. The 1947 program of tuberculosis prevention and health education will go forward promptly."

While a few persons have still not made returns for the Seals, we are confident that they will do so promptly and that we can count on carrying out all the activities planned. Our objective is to bring the conquest of tuberculosis nearer realization in 1947 by waging a telling campaign against the disease which costs the lives of more young people between 15 and 35 than any other disease."
